Whitehall, August 11.

Letter from Captain Harrison, Commander of His Majesty's Ship the Argyle, at the Isles of Bayonne, July 21.

The 10th Instant I received Orders from Sir John Norris to proceed with his Majesty's Ship the Argyle, and lye under Cape Prior, to intercept any Vessels bound into Ferrol or Corunna. We took a small Brigantine from Rebadues, laden with Lime for the Garrison of Corunna, and put on shore four Spanish Barks, with the like Lading, under Cape Prior. After sounding the Bays and looking into the Harbours above-mentioned, and returning to rejoin Sir John Norris on the 14th, I spoke with a Portuguese, who the day before came out of the Harbour of Camata between Cape Bellam and Cape Finisterre, and left there an English Brigantine laden with Fish from New-England, which had been taken and sent in by a Spanish Man of War of 24 Guns from the Havannah. I resolved to venture with my Boats to take her out of that Harbour. Before I could get to the Place, I met the Fleet, and acquainted the Admiral with the Affair, and my Intentions; who immediately gave me Orders to take with me the Gibraltar, and proceed on that Service. About Ten the same Evening our Boats got in, and boarded the Sloop, which being almost dry on the Ground, we could not bring her away, and therefore destroyed her by Fire. From thence I proceeded (pursuant to my Orders) to the Isles of Bayonne, to find out a Place for watering, and to take or destroy some Privateers and their Prizes, which the Admiral was informed sheltered themselves there; the 18th I anchored within the said Islands, and having met the Grampus Sloop took her with me; but finding no Vessels about those Isles, came to a Resolution, with the Captains Cockbourn and Parry, to proceed to the Town of Vigo at Break of Day, to take or destroy what Ships might be there. At One in the Morning a Portuguese Schooner bound for Vigo came in, with which my Boats spoke, and got from him a Pilot, and Information that five Prizes lay at Redondella, but no Ships at Vigo; the next Morning I went up with the Gibraltar and Grampus to Redondella, and brought away those Prizes, with which the Gibraltar and Grampus are now under Sail for Oporto.
